HONOLULU (HawaiiNewsNow) - Early walk-in voting for the primary election kicks off Monday.

Walk-in voting locations are situated statewide, and will remain open through Aug. 11.

And here's something new: Hawaii residents can now register and vote on the same day at early walk-in locations.

The change is aimed at bolstering voter turnout. The state now also allows residents to register to register online.

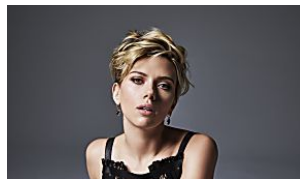

If you don't vote early (and you don't vote by mail), you'll have to vote on primary election day on Aug. 13. You can find your polling place and get other details by clicking here.
