

John Marion is executive director of Common Cause Rhode Island, having joined the organization in 2008. His responsibilities include serving as the organization's chief legislative advocate and spokesperson in Rhode Island.

John led successful efforts to reform Rhode Island's campaign finance disclosure laws, amend the Rhode Island Constitution to restore the Ethics Commission's jurisdiction over the General Assembly, and require risk-limiting post-election audits, among others.

John holds an undergraduate degree from Binghamton University and a graduate degree from Indiana University.